

The Watchman and Southerner.
WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 10.
WHY.
"Come buy, come buy I have to sell A precious thing—the magic balm.
Twill keep the lover's eye entranced; Twill be for aye, as now, his charm."
The bustling maid asked: "What need For me to buy the magic balm?
My lover swears with all his heart I shall forever be his charm."
A year has passed—the young wife sought The vendor of the magic balm.
"Oh, give me quickly, sir," she cried,
"A card of that magic charm."
What They Did When They Had a Chance
The anti-Southern feeling comes again under the persistent fanning of Robespierre Foraker, the young radical Governor of Ohio, and his Jacobin followers. The South must be punished, invaded, suppressed, and the Southern outages are undeniable.
According to Robespierre Foraker, Marat Chandler and Anacharsis Clovis Blair and other Jacobins allege to be true as to the outrages against republicans in the South, what reason have the "oppressed" negroes to hope for relief from the republicans? What did the republicans do when they had the opportunity?
First, they were in power under Andrew Johnson. How long was it before Andrew and his plantation friends, with bowie knives in their hands, were sitting around the Cabinet table arranging "reconstruction" upon approved, bowie knife Kuklux ideas?
Then Grant came to the White House. Grant, in a plain, soldierlike way, proposed to solve the outrage business. He was defeated by a republican combination headed by James G. Blaine.
Then it was proposed to come to open political alliance with the Southern leaders, to put Lamar, Breckinridge, Hunter in office, to remove the republicans, to restore Southern ascendancy, to give political authority to the men who created the Southern Confederacy. Among the republicans who led in this movement were Horace Greeley, Murat Halstead, G.
M. Depue, Whitelaw Reid and Frank H. Wood. Horace Greeley is dead. The other gentlemen live and are the leaders of Mr. Harrison's campaign.
When, in 1877, Mr. Hayes seized the Presidency his first act, by the advice and consent of Evans and Sherman, was to sell out the republican government in South Carolina to Wade Hampton and to abandon the Republican party in the South to the friends of Hampton. And Southern republicanism never had from Hayes a word of recognition or encouragement.
These are historical facts. They show that upon four different epochs in our political history, when the republican leaders could redeem their suffering brethren in the Southern States, they really cut their suffering brethren's throats to placate the Confederate leaders.—N. Y. Herald.

This is one of the most intensely interesting stories recently presented, and is one that will prove irresistible to every reader who peruses the opening lines.
ELEGANTLY ILLUSTRATED
By one of the Leading Newspaper Artists of the Country.
We append a few of the illustrations, with brief extracts from the adjoining text, from which some idea can be gathered of the highly dramatic nature of the story.

Samuel Cort, of the Detective Office.

The following extract is taken from the introductory paragraphs:
"A crime has been committed by an unknown assassin, within a short distance of the principal streets of the great city, and is surrounded by an impenetrable mystery. Indeed, from the nature of the crime itself, the place where it was committed, and the fact that the assassin has escaped without leaving a trace behind him, it would seem as though the case itself had been taken bodily out of one of Gaboriau's novels, and that his famous detective Loeuq only would be able to unravel it. On the 27th of July, at the hour of twenty minutes to two o'clock in the morning, a hansom cab drove up to the police station, in Grey street, St. Louis, and the driver made the startling statement that his cab contained the body of a man whom he had reason to believe had been murdered." The incidents are then described in detail.

"I'll give you money to save me," she said.

"I'll give you money to save me," she said, "I'll give you money to save me."
"What's that?" he asked, looking at her with a questioning glance.
